

Newsround Science Facts

Hello! Here is this week's letter!

Black Friday Robots!

To help with frantic Black Friday sales, many shops have robots in their warehouses, scanning the building to see if any items are left.

NASA

Recently, NASA have been on a new mission to knock an asteroid off its track so it will not harm anything in its way.

NASA are also pausing their probe missions that are currently roaming Mars because of communication problems caused by the sun. The pause will affect all six Mars missions. Earth and Mars are orbiting to opposite sides of the sun, something that happens every two years. The Sun's hot atmosphere can interfere with signals that are sent between the probes on Mars.
